

Abstract

Thesis "The Staging elements and procedures in a TV news in the Czech Television and TV Nova" reveals the elements that modify the perception of stories in TV news. Staging will be analyzed on commercial TV Nova and public Czech Television. Thesis is divided into two parts. The first part focuses on theoretical background elements of staging in the news. Work also shows the way, how the makers of news work with staging elements. TV News session is understood as distinctive kind of productions, like theater performance. At first the elements are discussed, then the presence of the elements in news of Czech Television and TV Nova is demonstrated. With that works the second part of the thesis, which shows individual examples of staging. The work is mainly about trying to identify, document and classify the elements of staging in examples of Czech television news.